

MARIA D'ANGELO

Maria D'Angelo is a highly skilled graphite artist known for her detailed and expressive renderings of horses, animals, and portrait subjects. Originally from Staten Island, New York, she has been creating art since childhood and has built a strong reputation through gallery exhibitions and shows across the United States.

D'Angelo's work captures the emotion and personality of her subjects, often focusing on the powerful connection between people and the animals they love. While she works in multiple mediums, she is best known for her mastery of pencil, where her control, precision, and attention to detail bring her subjects to life.

Her drawings are uniquely finished with multiple layers of fixative, allowing them to be displayed without glass. Through her work, D'Angelo aims to create meaningful, lasting pieces that bring joy and emotional connection to those who experience them.
