

RACHEL HURST

Rachel Hurst is a painter based in Austin, Texas, whose work explores the emotional presence and spirit of animals within the natural world. Working primarily in acrylic, she blends loose realism with atmospheric backgrounds, using layered glazes to create depth and movement. Inspired by her travels through mountain ranges and U.S. National Parks, Hurst draws from her own photography to create compositions that capture the energy and soul of her subjects. Raised in Colorado, she grew up immersed in art and nature as the daughter of western artist Oleg Stavrowsky. She is represented by Legends of the West Fine Art in Santa Fe, New Mexico.
