

Scott Wallis

Scott Wallis' paintings can be described as colorful, intense, vibrant and even aggressive. His impressionistic style makes you feel like you've been or want to be in each scene. He creates a vision of harmony with such elements as color, texture, light, surface interest, and balance, resulting in exciting works of art.

Born in Utah and graduated from Utah State University in 1980, with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in painting and photography. Two years later he received a Bachelor of Education. After twelve years in the public school system as a teacher and later as a graphic artist for Weber County School district, Scott left his career in education to pursue his dream as a fine artist.

Through the years Scott has enjoyed several one- man exhibits of his paintings. Since becoming a professional artist, Scott's work has been widely accepted, and is in many private collections throughout United States, Mexico, Canada and several collections in Europe.
